GIFTS THAT MAKE A CHURCH GROW

Lesson for May 6, 1979
Background Scripture:
I Corinthians 14

What then, brethren? When you come together, each one has a hymn, a lesson, a revelation, a tongue, or an interpretation. Let all things be done for edification. (I. Cor. 14:26)

Prophesy Verses Tongues

Paul was a good psychologist! Whenever he had to confront a touchy issue, he generally began with a positive affirmation. Before talking to the Corinthian Christians about speaking in tongues he says to them, "Make love your aim . . ."

Glossolalia, or "speaking in tongues," has had its "rounds" in most denominaitonal camps. Heated battles have been fought over the issue of tongue speaking. Congregations have been divided, relationships have been broken, and some churches have been disowned because of the practice of tongue speaking in their worship.

A larger question in our consideration of Paul's treatment of the issue of speaking in tongues is whether the gift of tongues at Corinth was the same gift the church received at Pentecost (Acts 2:4-13). At Pentecost the disciples spoke in foreign languages, intelligible to their hearers. In Corinth, the "language" was unintelligible both to the one speaking and the one hearing. Thus Paul insisted that interpretation was essential for helping people understand.

Paul also made a distinction between prophesy and tongues. He argues that prophesy informs and builds up all members of the church. The use of tongues, however, tends to serve only individual needs. Paul did not regard the use of tongues as the most important or desired gift. Neither did Paul appear to suppress the gift of tongues, but he did stress the need for doing that which aroused less confusion for Christians.

A fallacy has existed in some religious circles regarding the gift of tongues, namely, that unless one has the gift one does not possess the Holy Spirit. Other religious camps have argued that speaking in tongues is evidence of heresy or having "gone off the deep end."

The issue seems to center not on the rightness or wrongness of speaking in tongues, but on what is a meaningful expression of worship.

Further Concerns

Paul seems to come down hard on the use of tongues in worship where such utterances will be unintelligible. He probably would not raise a question about tongue speaking in the privacy of one's religious expression. The issue centers around understanding. If you have ever attended a Latin Mass you may have some feeling for what Paul is driving at. Even a foreign language is meaningless unless there is someone nearby who can translate into language we can understand.

Another of Paul's concerns is that the use of tongues in worship did not serve the needs of all present. Unless everyone present could understand what was being said, the worship service did not serve any needs. The use of tongues might produce a sense of excitement without really understanding what was being said or done.

Paul's strongest objection to the use of tongues in worship centrs around the "outsider" who comes to visit! What will he or she think should they enter a worship service where everyone is speaking in tongues? Paul's notion is that understanding is crucial to conversion.

Order in the House!

Paul offered the Corinthian Christians and us some sound advice concerning the conduct of worship. Some churches observe a highly structured order of worship while others have little or not structure at all. Something good can be said for each style. Too much structure may inhibit freedom of expression. Too much structure has oftentimes induced a sense of fear about speaking in public. But total informality has its dangers also. Worship should be thematic, designed to move a person to growth and challenge. Paul's major concern was that everything done in worship should produce Christian growth and understanding.

KEEP A GOOD EXTRA INCOME COMING IN. REENLIST.

Before your agent shows you another house, show him this ad.

American Federal Introduces Another First: The Fantastic F.L.I.P.® Mortgage.

If your real estate agent doesn't know about American Federal's new Flip,® mortgage, he may be showing you the wrong house.

That's why we're asking you to show him this ad. Because, if you qualify for Flip, you just might be able to buy the house you want now—instead of years from now.

FLIP.® FOR YOUR DREAM HOUSE.

Flip is short for the Flexible Loan Insurance Program. And it's based on what is called a graduated payment mortgage.

For the first 5 years, Flip cuts your monthly principal and interest payments, so you can buy a better house.

Let's say you're trying to buy a $45,000 house, with a 10% down-payment, and a 30-year mortgage. Normally, to do this, APR you'd have to make $20,200.

Thanks to Flip, the early year payments would be reduced. This means you could qualify for the same house and make $17,675 a year.

THE FLIP® CHART

Year	Traditional Loan	Flip® Loan
1	$378.01	$306.94
2	378.01	325.74
3	378.01	345.47
4	378.01	366.17
5	378.01	387.92
6-30	378.01	410.73

Payments based on a 90% loan on a $45,000 house.
Assuming typical taxes, insurance, other new housing expenses and a five-year supplementary period. Interest figured at 10¾% with 11.31% APR.

With a traditional 90% loan, the mortgage would be $378.01. With the Flip loan, the monthly payment would be $306.94.

Needless to say, that's a big difference. A difference you can live with.

THE KEY TO FLIP.®

The key that makes Flip work is a savings account. With Flip, you take the money you'd normally use for a downpayment and put it in a savings account at American Federal.

Every month for 5 years, we withdraw some of this money to supplement your monthly payment. For instance, on a $45,000 house, the full mortgage payment would be $410.73. You'd pay $306.94. And we'd make up the difference from your savings.

Then, after 5 years when your downpayment money is used up, your monthly payments, which have gradually increased, would remain at $410.73 for the rest of the mortgage.

During these 5 years, your income will have grown, you'll be able to afford the payments, and you'll be in the house you've wanted all along.

BE THE FIRST TO FLIP® AT AMERICAN FEDERAL.

We've told you the basics about Flip. But we know you're bound to have lots of other questions.

If you'd like, give us a call and we'll be happy to answer your questions. Or talk to your agent and ask him for our free Flip brochure.

After all, why wait for the house of your dreams, when you may be able to get it now?

Flip. Another good idea from American Federal.

Ladies Night At Pamplin

The Pamplin Ruritan Club met on Tuesday, April 24, at Elon Baptist Fellowship Room. After a meal provided by the women of Elon Church the Ruritan members and their wives heard Mr. Larry Robinson, Biologist and Recreation Specialist with USDA Soil Conservation Service Richmond office, present a program on Recreation Potential of Watershed Reservoirs.

"Under the present criteria one or more of the lakes would need to be developed for public recreation in order for the watershed project to qualify," he said. Robinson went on to point out that SCS can pay all of the construction cost for watershed lakes. In addition, SCS could pay half of the cost estimates for enlarging the lake for recreation, half of the cost of the land, certain restrooms and other facilities.

Robinson pointed out that operation and maintenance of fishing waters and picnic areas is much simpler than swimming facilities. He stated that after construction, the operation and maintenance of the recreation facilities would be done by the local sponsor.

In other business, the roadside clean-up day scheduled for April 28 was finalized with the Ruritans providing refreshments for all participants.

The softball tournament was held April 20, - 22 with one of our local church teams (Rocks) taking 2nd place honors. A team from Cullen came away with 1st. place.

National Foreign Language Week, 1979 (May 21-May 25)

Thanks to the technology and enterprise of television and the desire of other peoples to communicate with our citizens, the voices of many nations are heard almost daily in American living rooms.

In an increasingly interdependent world, National Foreign Langage Week is a fitting reminder to our citizens of the importance to our national well-being and international goodwill of language instruction in our schools. And it is also a tribute to the teachers who undertake this difficult task.

During this year's National Foreign Language Week, the President's Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies will be in the midst of its yearlong series of hearings and investigations into ways of improving language education. Language teachers throughout the country are contributing to the Commission's study. I fully expect that the Commission's report later this year will give us all a greater appreciation of the value of language study and of the role of language teachers in helping us to fulfill our global obligations more easily and effectively.

I welcome the opportunity of this annual observance to urge all Americans to broaden their knowledge of foreign language for both their personal self-fulfillment and our national well-being
